A true boxing fans dream come true!

Atlantic City is known as one of the original boxing meccas, so it's only fitting that some of boxing's most iconic fighters and colorful personalities be honored and recognized for all they have done to help Atlantic City be known as a boxing destination. A lineup of former and current boxing greats as well as celebrities from music and sports are anticipated.

"The Claridge is proud to be in partnership with the Atlantic City Boxing Hall of Fame and to continue to promote professional boxing's exceptional history in Atlantic City," says Cem Erenler, vice president of Operations and Business Development for TMJ Properties, the owner and developer of The Claridge. The iconic hotel, which is now part of the global Radisson brand. first opened in 1930. "Hosting this signature event is in the best traditions of The Claridge, which for more than 80 years has been Atlantic City's center for exciting events in sports and entertainment," Mr. Erenler said.

"There have been great fighters and other iconic figures such as "Iron" Mike Tyson, Atlantic City's own Leavander Johnson, as well as Arturo "Thunder" Gatti and Don King who have participated in some of boxing most memorable boxing events right here in Atlantic City" stated Ray McCline President/Founder of the Atlantic City Boxing Hall of Fame. "My core team of Roy Foreman, Rodrick Green and the esteem ACBHOF Nomination Committee will be announcing all future inductees on Monday November 28, 2016 via an official press release to the general public"

Over the next several months leading up to the ACBHOF "2017" Induction weekend, updates on room packages, schedule of events and celebrity appearances will be posted on the Atlantic City Boxing Hall of Fame and the Claridge Hotel websites.
